JENNY HAN has her master's degree in creative writing for children from the New School. She lives in New York City. This is her second novel.

JENNY HAN says about The Summer I Turned Pretty Book 1 that the Gram, who inspired me to write about the forever kind of friendship, the kind that spans over boyfriends and beaches and children and lifetimes I say, "I can't believe you really here."

He sounds almost shy when he says, "Me neither." And then he hesitates. "Are you still coming with me?"

I can't believe he even has to ask. I would go anywhere. "Yes," I tell him.

It feels like nothing else exists outside of that word, this moment. There's just us. Everything that happened this past summer, and every summer before it, has all led up to this. To now.
